Instructor Catherine Mohammed, PhD, MPhil, MN, RN

Catherine has over 35 years of progressive practice and academic leadership in various acute care settings with the clinical specialties of cardiac and critical care. Her current academic experience has expanded over the past 12 years from that of fulltime faculty to campus leadership positions to national roles overseeing regional campuses' academic success. She obtained her Bachelor of Arts in Nursing, with a minor in Psychology from St. Catherine's University, her Masters in Nursing Administration from the University of Phoenix, San Diego Campus, and her PhD in Public Policy and Administration-Health Services through Walden University. Catherine conducted a phenomenology study on nursing leadership-her passion. She prides herself in the development of others' talents and skills; being able to see them at their best of their future potential. Her research areas of interest and expertise are in the education of leadership, transition to practice, healthy work environments, and team building. She is also greatly involved in professional organizations such as NLN, AZ League for Nursing (past and upcoming Chapter President; current Vice President), Sigma, AONE, INACSL, and AACN.
